Approve OPA For One Year

Chairman Spence States it Means Higher Prices For Many Things

WASHINGTON, April 5—(P)—The house banking committee today approved a year's extension of OPA but hitched on an amendment which Chairman Spence (D-Ky.) said would mean higher retail prices for automobiles, refrigerators and many other items.

The committee voted 15 to 6 to prohibit the pricing agency from requiring retailers for a period of six months to absorb larger cost of manufactured products whose production was drastically cut in wartime.

Spence opposed the amendment. The committee defeated 13 to 9 an amendment to limit OPA's new lease on life to nine months, leaving the extension at a year as requested by President Truman.

However, the group by a 15 to 5 ballot, approved — subject to house and senate action — a gradual termination of the government's $2,000,000,000 annual subsidy program.

Would Require Subsidies
The latter amendment would require the government to reduce subsidy payments by 25 per cent over the year beginning July 1 and get out of the subsidy business by June 30, 1947. The subsidies include payments to hold down food costs.

A proposal by Rep. Wolcott (R-Mich.) to give manufacturers prices reflecting production cost and a reasonable profit on each item, was defeated on a 11 to 11 tie vote.

The committee approved, however, an amendment by Rep. Barry (D-NY) establishing a policy that OPA should allow upward price adjustments for transient hotels — making a distinction between a transient and an apartment or residential hotel. No percentage of increase was specified.

The proposal to hold the pricing agency's new life span to nine months beyond June 30 also was offered by Wolcott, senior Republican on the committee. Its defeat left proposed OPA termination date at June 30, 1947.

FBI Unearths $153,000 Down Nine Feet Deep

Sum Buried by Postal Clerk Who Confessed Before His Death

WASHINGTON, April 5—(P)—The post office department announced today that three inspectors working on a postal theft case had unearthed $153,150 buried nine feet deep in a yard in Jacksonville, Fla.

The department said the money was part of $180,000 stolen by a former post office employee, who the department said confessed before he died August 10, 1944. It said the case involved the biggest money theft in postal history.

Chief Inspector James J. Doran, asserting that discovery of the $153,150 solved the case, related that three inspectors who had been ordered to retrace every step in the two-year hunt for the missing money found it in two tin cans and two glass jars, sealed with paraffin and enclosed in two lengths of stove pipe.

Took Federal Bank Shipment
Doran said that the late Joseph D. Marshall, who died 18 months ago "was a clerk in the registry section of the West Bay annex of the Jacksonville post office when a Federal Reserve Bank shipment came into his hands."

The post office department said: "He submitted for it a letter which he had already prepared to an innocent party and gave that letter the same number as the money shipment bore. The recipient kept the letter and the subsequent identification of Marshall's handwriting fastened the crime on him."

The department said: "The employee, Joseph D. Marshall, died August 10, 1944, after confessing the crime. Beyond saying that the money was buried, he did not disclose its hiding place."

Wife Acquitted
"Marshall's wife, Margaret, was acquitted on charges of conspiracy and of secreting and carrying away the money, by a federal court jury January 20, 1945."

"From the time of Marshall's arrest several days after theft, inspectors watched the property day and night without ceasing."

The announcement concluded: "Taking into account money which Marshall paid for jewelry after the theft, approximately $18,000 remained unaccounted for."

More Money for Veterans Work
JEFFERSON CITY, April 5—(P)—Gov. Phil M. Donnelly has signed a bill providing a supplemental appropriation of $60,000 for the state service officer to permit hiring needed help and pay other expenses in aiding returned war veterans.

The bill also provides a supplemental appropriation of $2,000 for the poultry experiment station at Mountain Grove.

"I would rather have been shot in the army," he added, "than go through with this."

Proclamation

WHEREAS, The President of the United States has announced an Emergency Food Program; and as it is urgently necessary for all our citizens to cooperate in this program;

NOW, THEREFORE, I, A. H. Wilks, Mayor of Sedalia, urge all the people of Sedalia to support the County program of food conservation. A world food crisis has developed that threatens to be the worst in modern times. It is reported that more people face starvation today than in all the war years combined. In Europe, Asia and Africa millions will die unless we help. In this critical world situation, it is our duty to safeguard civilization by heeding the pleas of those who face the slow death of starvation. A number of emergency food measures have been planned, and a County emergency food manager has been named. Let us cooperate fully with this program. In the name of humanity, and as a safeguard of the peace, let every citizen of Sedalia lend his active support and aid to these emergency plans and measures. Our whole-hearted assistance will be a most effective means of promoting the well-being of the peoples of the world during one of the most critical periods of history. I call upon all Sedalians to support this great effort to the limit of their ability.

IN WITNESS WHEREOF, I have hereunto set my hand this 4th day of April, 1946.

WHITE PLAINS, N. Y., April 5—(P)—Westchester County Sheriff Edward J. Ganter today calmed the fears of a woman who received the following letter:

"We recently received an inquiry from a party with a name similar to yours, but without an address, requesting we send them one of our educated apes for a 30-day free trial."

"You ask if our apes can be used in housework, table waiting, etc. . . . Definitely, yes. x x x They make ideal servants."

"Unless we hear from you to the contrary, we will send you one, together with an instructor in the near future. The instructor will live with you for a week to orientate your ape to his new environment."

The sheriff explained that he and the FBI had investigated and found that the letter, and 200 others in a similar vein, was a joke.

Korean Girls Turn at Sight Of the Yanks

Being Seen With Them Spoils Their Chance of Marriage

SEOUL, April 5—(P)—Fraternization is not among the problems of American occupation forces in Korea. Girls turn their faces, or run away, at sight of the Yank "giants with big noses."

With more than six months to have established themselves, it would appear that American soldiers have flopped socially. But that's not the case; they haven't been given a chance.

Koreans, who place a high value on chastity, say the girls are shy because of girlhood training. Americans say the maidens are inhibited.

You NEVER see a GI and a Korean girl walking along a street arm in arm. You seldom see them together.

The few girls who make a date with an American insist on meeting in a secluded place.

Kaesong (Geisha) girls, however, show no compunction in entertaining Americans. But the average soldier can't afford the lavish sums it costs to be entertained professionally and not many officers can for long.

The Redlight district is closely patrolled by military police. A recent examination of 283 Kaesong girls showed that nearly all had a venereal disease.

Prospective brides fear they would ruin their matrimonial chances if seen with an American. A number of women have been beaten by jealous Korean males because they consorted with Yanks.

One young corporal summed up American reaction thus: "It beats me. We burn up Japan (with fire bombs and raids) and their women are as sweet as can be to us. We liberate the Koreans and their women won't have anything to do with us."

Soldier Dies, Four Injured
NEOSHO, Mo., April 5—(P)—First Sergeant Earl F. Canterbury, Camp Crowder soldier, was killed and four persons were injured, one seriously, in a crash of two cars near here last night.

Mr. and Mrs. Ellis Kindred of Joplin were taken to a Neosho hospital, the latter seriously injured. Kindred is an instructor in Joplin schools.

Canterbury's home was St. Albans, W. Va.

To Seek Renomination

Will Parade Before Truman And Family
CHICAGO, April 5—(P)—Uncle Sam marshaled forces today to display the nation's military might before President Truman in an Army day spectacle tomorrow.

Army officers, secret service men and city officials made final preparations for the one-day visit of Mr. Truman, accompanied by Mrs. Truman and their daughter Margaret and the army "top brass."

Secretary of War Robert P. Patterson, general of the army Dwight D. Eisenhower, chief of staff, Gen. Carl Spaatz, commander Army Air Forces Gen. Jacob L. Devers, commander Army Ground Forces and Lt. Gen. Leroy Lutes, commander Army Service Forces, were all included in the group to review a great Army day parade with Mr. Truman.

The president planned to leave Washington by train late today and arrive at Chicago's union station at 9:30 a. m. CST tomorrow.

Admiral William Leahy, presidential chief of staff, was due with his party and probably Secretary of the Treasury Vinson.

Hosts for the Day
Hosts for the day included Democratic Mayor Edward J. Kelly and Republican Gov. Dwight H. Green, and Maj. Gen. Louis A. Craig, commanding the Sixth Service Command.

Plans called for a parade of Mr. Truman's party from the union station through the Loop to a reviewing stand on Michigan avenue at the Congress street Plaza. After the Army day parade the president was to have luncheon at the Blackstone hotel, then arrive at Soldier Field amid a 21-gun salute for a 20-minute speech at 3 p. m. to be carried by the four major radio networks. He will return to Washington immediately thereafter.

Other Speakers
Secretary Patterson and Gen. Eisenhower were scheduled for five minute addresses.

Fifteen thousand troops, including the famed Fifth (Red Diamond) infantry division will be in the five mile-long parade down Michigan avenue, along with the tanks, self-propelled guns, weapon carriers, artillery engineers, signal corps units, parachute infantrymen and army bands.

Overhead, meantime, 165 army airplanes will display the nation's aerial might, including B-29 superfortresses, Mustangs, transport ships, medium and light bombers, attack planes and at least one P-80 Shooting Star jet plane from Dayton, Ohio.

Workers in Pork Will Leave Their Jobs
KANSAS CITY, Mo., April 5—(P)—One hundred workers in the pork kill department of the Cudahy plant left their jobs yesterday in a dispute over pay schedules.

Willard Murphy, field representative of the United Packinghouse Workers (CIO), said the men claimed a management practice of shifting them from one assignment to another caused a loss of from $2.25 to $5 a day in pay. Murphy said the dispute had been referred to International officers in Chicago.

Question as to FDR's Military Tax Exemption

Department Asks Executors to File Personal Return

ALBANY, N. Y., April 5—(P)—The New York tax department ruled today that executors for the late President Roosevelt's estate should file a 1945 personal income tax return because "there is considerable doubt" as to the chief executive's military exemption.

Attorneys for the Roosevelt estate had asked for a ruling on whether the late president was exempt from the tax on the grounds that he was a member of the armed forces at the time of his death April 12, 1945.

The request on Feb. 5, had noted that Roosevelt was commander-in-chief of the United States forces and had asked whether this made him a soldier within the meaning of the tax law.

Alger B. Chapman, state tax commissioner, said in a letter to the executors that "in view of the fact that there is considerable doubt as to the right of Roosevelt estate to an exemption . . . the commissioner suggests that as a matter of protection to the executors the returns should be filed by them for the calendar year 1945, both for the decedent and for the estate."

Civilian Status
A year's tax exemption is granted under the law to the estates of servicemen who died on active duty.

Chapman said "it seems clear that so far as the powers conferred by the constitution are concerned the control of the president of the United States is supreme. However, it appears that at least in recent years the exercise of such control has been looked upon as the exercise of civilian authority rather than military authority."

"The last two war presidents, President Wilson and President Roosevelt, both clearly recognized the civilian nature of the president's position as commander-in-chief."

Parents Seek And Find Son
SPRINGFIELD, Mo., April 5—(P)—George Daniel Brooks, 17, was back with his parents here today, unwilling to talk about events which led to his disappearance from Kemper Military school at Boonville, Mo., two months ago.

First news of his disappearance was printed here Tuesday after his parents visited school officials at Boonville to ask help in finding him.

Maj. H. C. Clark, commandant, told Mr. and Mrs. Brooks and a reporter that George had been beaten in a hazing before the Christmas holidays. Clark said the boys who participated in the hazing had been "severely punished."

Major Clark said he was sure there had been no hazing after Christmas but Mrs. Brooks said she was sure her son had been "hounded out of school." He vanished in February.

Seen in Topeka
After publication of the story Tuesday, a friend of George's told the Brookses he had seen their son in Topeka, Kas., but had said nothing about it because of a boyhood pact that bound him not to discuss his friends' affairs.

Yesterday, the parents and police chief George Walker went to Topeka and found young Brooks working at the Grant department store there. He told them he had hitchhiked from the school to Topeka, but he wouldn't discuss what had happened at the school.

BULLETIN

ALBUQUERQUE, N. M., April 5—(P)—State Police Capt. T. E. Jackson said today that 11 bodies had been removed and brought here from the wreckage of a navy transport plane which crashed 13 miles southeast of Albuquerque.

He said the wrecked ship was located at a remote spot in the sandhills near the Isleta Indian Pueblo. Incomplete reports indicated it did not burn, Jackson said.

The bodies were taken to a local mortuary.

Rescuers sent out from Kirtland Field here were still at the scene.

The ship, based at Olathe, Kas., Naval Air Station and en route from Phoenix, Ariz., to Amarillo, Tex., crashed about 9:21 p. m. (MST), five minutes after radio contact with Kirtland.

Olathe authorities said eight passengers and three crew members were aboard. Ten officers and men came here from Olathe by plane early today to aid in the search.

The Daily Washington

Merry-Go-Round

by Drew Pearson

WASHINGTON, April 5—Two weeks ago the Russians announced that they would send more than half a million tons of grain to aid hungry France. Here is the inside story of what happened afterward.

The Russian move naturally did not strike too responsive a cord in U. S. government circles, because simultaneously UNRRA is being asked to feed the starving thousands in certain parts of Russia, especially White Russia.

Also the fact that France is in the throes of an important election fight can't be ignored. That election, the first in ten years, will decide whether the Communists secure control of France, and the sending of Russian grain to France at this particular time is bound to have a powerful psychological effect.

Despite this obvious political fact, however, and despite the fact that UNRRA is helping part of Russia while Russia feeds France, the U. S. war shipping administration sent ten vessels to Odessa on Soviet request to pick up the Russian grain and take it to France.

When these ships arrived at Odessa, however, they found no grain. In fact, at this writing, they were reported still waiting at anchor in Odessa harbor.

What the Russians had done was to ship all the grain to Nikolayev, south of Odessa, where it was loaded on four Russian ships, and is now on its way to France. Naturally, the Soviet-manned ships, even though some are reported to be lend-lease Liberties built in the USA will receive a tremendous ovation and help to sway the election when they arrive in France.

ANN went outside, and walked around to the new wing, which was growing impressively fast.

"Is Mr. Hansen around?" she asked the first workman she encountered.

"Just left," he said, then raised his voice. "Hey, Hansen! Miss Drake wants to see you!"

"Coming," yelled a voice from the road. Ann sauntered down the path to meet him.

"Good morning, Mrs. Drake. How does it look to you?" he greeted her pleasantly. Mr. Hansen was a big blond man. He had been to college, and to Ann was distinguished from his workmen, likewise big blond men, for the most part, by more careful enunciation and a blue serge suit.

"It looks grand, Mr. Hansen," Ann smiled at him. "And now that you're doing that so well, I wonder if you'll do something else for me—"

Suspicion clouded Mr. Hansen's clear blue eyes. "Now listen, Mrs. Drake, if it's about that Pete Carpello—"

"How clever of you, Mr. Hansen!" Ann crowed. Then her voice took on a coaxing tone. "He needs a job so badly, and I'm sure he won't drink any more—at least not while he's working—"

"Listen, Mrs. Drake, that guy's dangerous! He can work well enough, drunk or sober, but he's a mean little man, and I'm not going to have him start carving on any of my good men."

"Don't be melodramatic, Mr. Hansen," Ann reproached him.

"I tell you it wouldn't be safe to have him working here. His wife's your laundress, isn't she?" Ann nodded. "But what does that have to do with it?"

"Well, he gets screwy ideas, and she's no angel—she likes to make eyes at a big good-looking guy as well as the next one—and you can't blame her much, I suppose."

There was a letter. Ann put it in her pocket, and glanced over the less interesting mail on her way back to the house. She shed her jacket, then curled up in a big chair in the library to read Colin's letter. It wasn't long—he wrote perhaps half a dozen lines each day, and posted the total when he went down to the ranger station to wait for her weekly letter. His book was getting along so well it frightened him—it couldn't be good, when it went so easily. He loved her very much.

After lunch, Ann dressed, rather absurdly for her proposed walk in the woods, in a frivolous gown of candy-striped green and white chiffon. She liked the way it outlined her slender body, and decided she should make the most of her clothes before she had to start wearing smocks.

She sauntered, with Lord Peter frisking around her joyfully, down the wooded path that led to the shore. It was a beautiful day, clear and sunny, and she felt contented and full of well-being. She was perched precariously on a rail fence, her full chiffon skirt draped gracefully about her, when she saw Jock coming down the path. He looked fit, in the sunlight, tall and handsome in his brown tweeds. "Hullo, beautiful!" he shouted at her.

She responded warmly, in spite of herself. Jock was so very good to look at! She hadn't seen him for some months—not since he and Nina had stayed overnight at their house—and was disgusted at the ridiculous way her heart had acted. It thumped alarmingly at the very sight of him. Jock was married, and she was married—she mustn't lose sight of those two very important facts.

He stood beside her, and flung an arm carelessly about her waist, which gave her a further twinge of uneasiness. For Colin was so far away, and Jock so very close. "It's a beautiful day, isn't it? I was driving through, and thought I'd stop off to see you. Brunhilde—or somebody—told me you'd taken this path."

"That was Helga—my laundress."

"Oh? It's been an awfully long time, Ann. In spite of the unpromising way our last interview ended, we shouldn't let such a long time go by without seeing each other. It ain't right!" He smiled a little crookedly, and turned to look into her face.

Her voice was carefully casual as she answered him. "There isn't much reason for our meeting, is there, Jock? In fact, it's better that we don't I think. For after all, we know—even though we hate to admit it—that friendship simply isn't possible, when you've been in love before."

"And who in hell said anything about friendship?" Jock inquired roughly.

Brotherhood members got together and decided to recommend to their chiefs that their staffs be withdrawn from the OPA.

But when Jack Thornton, chairman of the CIO cost-of-living committee, reported this to CIO Chief Phil Murray, Murray picked up the phone and called Paul Porter. The latter was flabbergasted, urged that the consumer advisers remain and promised that they would not be by-passed in the future. For the time being they are remaining.

Note—What labor doesn't altogether realize is that wage increases for unions are bound to result in a high living cost—for them as well as white collar workers. For instance, Washington, D. C., milk drivers have served a strike notice for April 25. If their increased wage demands are met, the price of milk will go up for everyone in that area. Meanwhile, every wage increase in the city tends to draw labor off the farm, or else increase wages on the farm—which means a higher cost of producing food. It all goes 'round in circles.

Tip to former ambassador Carlton Hayes, now head of the American Historical Society; read "Wind in the Olive Trees," published by Boni and Gaer, for an outstanding account of the history of the Franco dictatorship in Spain. This book tells the history which so great a historian as yourself must have been aware of during your period as ambassador to Madrid. It is written by Abel Plenn, whom your office insisted OWI recall from Spain and whom your office nearly had fired after he returned to Washington. The book will make interesting reading, Mr. ex-ambassador.

Secretary of State Byrnes received an informal proposal from the British foreign office last week that all undeveloped oil lands in the Near East be placed under the joint United Nations commission. Note the word undeveloped. This would leave the British present holdings free of UNO control. Byrnes countered with a proposal that all oil in the Middle East—that is, British, Russian and American-owned oil—be placed under the United Nations.

Inside reason why Britain is worried over Indian independence is fear she will lose control of India's valuable thorium deposits. This is the stuff from which atomic energy comes. So long as England controls India, it controls more than a third of the world's metal for making atomic energy. . . . Russian political agents have started to stir up trouble in Iraq against Great Britain.

Consumers Rebel

While OPA's new administrator Paul Porter, was busy trying to appease farm and cotton belt congressmen the other day, he nearly had his main political prop knocked from under him.

The AFL, CIO and Railroad brotherhoods served notice that they were about to withdraw their advisory staffs from the OPA. Since labor is now OPA's staunchest backer, this would have been a death blow.

What most people don't realize is that the AFL, CIO and the Railroad Brotherhoods maintain a staff of about 20 cost-of-living advisers which works alongside the OPA. They represent the largest block of American consumers.

However, without consulting these consumer representatives, Porter put through some highly important price increases on meat, canned goods, fresh fruit, crude oil and bread.

As a result, the AFL, CIO and

Miss Calix Is Guest Speaker To B.P.W. Club

Tells Of Honduras
And Of People
Of South America

Miss Eva Calix, of Honduras, Central America, guest speaker at the Business and Professional Women's club dinner meeting, at the Bothwell hotel, Thursday night, likened the new Pan-America highway, nearing completion between North and South America, to a bridge of friendship and good neighborliness which should also unite the countries.

More and more, she said, are the people of the two countries becoming acquainted and the "good neighbor policy" is bringing them closer together, creating a better understanding.

She spoke of the history of Honduras, of the products of the land, bananas being the largest crop, of the rubber, mahogany, mines.

Take Things More Leisurely
The climate, she said, is warm, and the people live more leisurely than they do in North America.

Referring to the difficulty in learning English Miss Calix, whose native tongue is Spanish, gave interesting and amusing instances of the misinterpretation of words by one just learning the language.

The speaker was introduced by Miss Freda Mueller, chairman of the finance committee, which was in charge of the program.

Prior to the talk two trumpet numbers "Purple Lilacs" and "The World is Waiting For the Sunrise," were given by Jimmy Watts, who was accompanied on the piano by his mother, Mrs. J. W. Watts.

Mrs. Marie McClure led the group singing, with Mrs. W. L.
Monegan accompanist.

Announcement was made of the state convention which will be held at the Chase hotel, St. Louis, April 27 and 29. Miss Hazel Palmer is state president. Many members of the Sedalia club are planning to attend.

NO DISCOMFORT WITH NEW HEARING AID

Weighing but half as much as most conventional hearing aids, the new Beltone Mono-Pac offers the deafened relief from bulging batteries and dangling battery wires for the first time!

Small enough to hold in the palm of the hand, the new aid combines batteries and transmitter in a single compact unit, yet brings enough volume to hear whispers and group conversation.

Another exclusive process eliminates the disturbing static and friction noises present in most aids. A lifetime service guarantee assures the wearer of better hearing for years to come by changing the patented "plug-in" tubes as the hearing itself changes.

Order to Force Sale of Flocks

JEFFERSON CITY, April 5.—(P)—A recent order of the United States Department of Agriculture, reducing by 20 per cent the manufacture of poultry feeds, will force further sale of flocks in Missouri.

Norman Dickey, state agriculture department feed expert, said today.

The order, Dickey said, would restrict feed manufacturers to 80 per cent of their 1945 production. It is effective through 1946, and Dickey believes the present kill of turkeys—resulting mainly from the critical feed shortage—will increase now that even less feed is in the offering.

"National figures indicate that there has been a greater volume of production of chicks and poults (turkeys) in states with favorable feed ratios.

"However, if the present feed shortages continue, there won't be as many turkeys and chickens on the market in the fall this year as there were last year.

Judge Not
He was the most unpopular man in town.
He went to church every Sunday, but he was never seen dropping a coin in the collection basket. Everybody knew he was a wealthy man, but he lived in a cheap room, did his own cooking and laundering. He was unkempt, tight-lipped, unfriendly. He was considered beyond liking or disliking. He was simply despised.

When he died and his shrunken body was laid to rest in the plainest of wooden coffins, only a handful of charitable persons stood at the grave.
Even those shook their heads, wondering what he had done with all the money he possessed. There were no relatives present, and the only one who seemed genuinely grieved was the pastor. He alone had once in a while talked with the dead recluse.

For a period after the old man's death, stories kept going the rounds of how mean he was; how he wore the same hat for years; how he virtually starved himself when he could have lived in luxury; how he never gave a dime to charity. Some joked about how hard it must have been for him to leave all his money behind. A few said openly a soul like his could never expect to see Heaven.

All this gossip was relayed to the pastor's ears. One Sunday morning, he climbed into the pulpit, and spoke the name of the dead man. He called him his friend. There were tears in his eyes as he told how an incurable disease had caused him to shun company so that others might not have to witness his suffering; how often and long he had prayed, thanking God that he was allowed to suffer a little with Him, to share His poverty and want.

For more years than people could remember, he had known no comfort, no kindness. And all the while he had been giving money to the church, paying off the mortgage, buying a new organ, and so forth, yet insisting that his name never appear on the contribution lists.

"A peculiar man, yes, not a very likeable man, perhaps," the pastor concluded, "but God will know how to judge him." He preached no other sermon that morning.

Friends of Jesus — Scripture:
Mark 10:13-14, 16; 15:43; Luke 6:13-16; 8:1-3; John 3:1-2.

By William E. Gilroy, D. D.
Who were the friends of Jesus?
First of all, the children, whom He took up in His arms and blessed. The Disciples, with those false notions that many religious people have had about the young people going to send away the women who brought their children, rebuking them for troubling the Master. But the Master was "much displeased." It was the Disciples who were rebuked and the world was given that beautiful and revealing picture of Jesus surrounded by the children, with the reminder that childlike-ness is essential for those who would enter the kingdom of heaven.

Then the Disciples themselves, already with Him and in His company — the men from fishing boats, from customs houses, and from other lowly places and walks of life, to whom Jesus said, "I have not called you servants, for the servant knoweth not what his lord doeth, but I have called you friends."

The great, also — men in authority, like the Roman centurion whose faith He commended; Nicodemus, the ruler of the Jews, who came to Him by night; Joseph of Arimathea, who claimed His body and gave it burial; the wealthy who invited Him to their homes and made for Him a feast, like Simon, the Pharisee, whose hospitality He accepted but whom He lovingly rebuked.

He befriended too, the sick and the needy, the common people who "heard Him gladly." The multitudes who followed Him for the loaves and fishes.

He loved them all and they were all His friends.

And He accepted the sinners, those publicly recognized as sinners, men and women of ill repute who earnestly longed to become more worthy, and who were already worthy than the hypocrites who despised and condemned them. How friendly Jesus was toward them! His kindness brought upon Him the reproach of the Pharisee, "this man receiveth sinners and eateth with them." But how little the Master cared for reputation, or for worldly popularity, in surrounding the lost and outcast with friendship and grace!

The mourners and the sorrowful, with whom He wept, and upon whom He pronounced the blessing of comfort were His friends, too.

Nor should we forget the women, so many of them, to whom He brought new hope and life, in a time and place where women had an inferior position —
Mary and Martha in the home at Bethany, the "woman who was a sinner" who washed His feet with her tears, and dried them with the hair of her head, the "woman of Samaria" whom He met at the well and who brought the people from the nearby city to meet Him, and to believe because of what they saw and heard.

The Syrophenician woman, be-seething Him to heal her child, and more than matching Him in her reply to His questions; the woman who touched the hem of His garment and found healing;
the woman accused of having been taken in adultery whom He bade to go in peace and sin no more; the poor widow casting her mite into the temple treasury;
the women, besides His mother, who followed Him all the way to the Cross; and the women who met Him on the Resurrection morning.
These were the friends of Jesus.
And what a friend He was to them all!

CHRISTIAN SCIENCE CHURCHES

"UNREALITY" is the subject of the Lesson-Sermon in all Churches of Christ, Scientist, on Sunday, April 7, 1946.

Golden Text: Proverbs 13:7.
Among the citations which comprise the Lesson-Sermon is the following from the Bible:
"Sing unto the Lord, all the earth; shew forth from day to day his salvation." (I Chronicles 16:23). The Lesson Sermon also includes the following passage from the Christian Science textbook,
"Science and Health with Key to the Scriptures," by Mary Baker Eddy: "The realization that all in-harmony is unreal brings objects and thoughts into human view in their true light, and presents them as beautiful and immortal. . . . Discord is the nothingness named error. Harmony is the something-ness named Truth." (p. 276).

ADVENTURES IN SPACE: The Story of Radar

No. 5: Radio Turns Detective

BY DAVID DIETZ
(Noted Science Writer; Author of "Atomic Energy in the Coming Era," Etc.
(Written for NEA Service)

(1) Two scientists working at the Naval Research Laboratory in Washington in 1922 detected—with radio waves—the presence of a small wooden vessel steaming up the Potomac River some distance away. The scientists were Dr. A. Hoyt Taylor and Leo C. Young. Their experiment was an important milestone in the study and development of radio detection.

(2) Next, Dr. Taylor and Young suggested that two destroyers, traveling miles apart on a mission of tracking down the enemy, could keep a continuous stream of radio waves flowing between them. If an enemy vessel passed anywhere between the two destroyers they could become "immediately aware" of the fact and take action in tracking it down and sinking it. This could be done, the scientists added, "irrespective of fog, darkness or smoke screen."

(3) Eight years later, the Navy Department ordered Dr. Taylor's laboratory "to investigate the use of radio to detect the presence of enemy vessels and aircraft." Two widely distant stations were set up. One station sent messages to the other, one wave traveling along the ground and the other through the air. The two waves kept in perfect time with each other until an airplane or similar object crossed their path. When this happened the ground and air waves were thrown out of tune with each other, like the discord of a singer when he "flats" a note.

(4) While experiments with radio detection were in progress, United States Army Signal Corps scientists were experimenting with heat waves. Heat waves, like light and radio, are also considered a form of electromagnetic waves. Like radio waves, they can penetrate clouds and fog, and can be picked up by "thermocouples" so sensitive that they can detect the presence of stars billions of miles away. They detected heat waves from the engines of airplanes, blimps and ocean liners in New York harbor. The thermocouples generate weak electric currents registered on sensitive instruments.

Answer to Previous Puzzle

Shutdown By Moberly Plant

MOBERLY, Mo., April 5—(P)—The Brown Shoe Company plant here was shut down Thursday because of what was described in a bulletin board notice as the "refusal of the in-seamers to perform a normal day's work."

The notice was posted by R. H. Polson, the plant superintendent. He declined to elaborate and Howard Ridgeway, business agent of the boot and shoe workers local No. 521, said he had "no comment."

Fourteen persons are employed in the in-seamers department. A total of 650 employees were idle.

The factory is in the process of turning out 150,000 pairs of girls' shoes for distribution by the American Red Cross overseas.

IXTCC is Now Third Air Force Troop Carrier

GREENVILLE, S. C.—Under the new organization of three major combat air commands by the new Army Air Forces, the Ninth Troop Carrier Command, here, will be under the tactical command and will cooperate in missions with the surface forces, Maj. Gen. Paul L. Williams, commanding general of the IX Troop Carrier Command, announced this week.

At the same time he revealed that the Ninth Troop Carrier Command has been redesignated
the Third Air Force (Troop Carrier), effective March 31, 1946, in the new setup of the three air commands — strategic, defensive and tactical.

For the present, Gen. Williams said regular peacetime missions now being carried out by the Troop Carrier Command here will continue to be flown, with the only change being redesignation of the Ninth Troop Carrier Command to Third Air Force (Troop Carrier).

Commenting on the new air program, Gen. Williams said a strong airborne striking force carried by the Third Air Force (Troop Carrier) would be available in the United States for rapid concentration and employment.

"Under this new program, and other plans being projected by the war department," Gen. Williams explained, "our army will be the most mobile in the world. And through the tactical command, all types of combat equipment can be hurled into combat in distant places almost at a moment's notice, in big, new airplanes like the C-82 and C-97 and other types of transports now in the planning stage."

The Third Air Force (Troop Carrier) will be headed by Major General Williams, whose present headquarters will remain at Greenville, South Carolina. Maj.
Gen. E. R. Quesada will head the tactical command, with headquarters at Langley Field, Va.

Functions, command structure, subordinate wings and groups to remain same in location and missions, according to General Williams. "Tactical Air Command is in rightful places as a complete air force with Troop Carrier support," he declared.

THE NEW RIVERSIDES ARE NOW EVEN STRONGER THAN OUR PRE-WAR TIRES!

Yes! You get added strength and added safety on the new Ward Riversides! Why? Because each cord is stronger to begin with; chemically-strengthened to stay stronger longer! Then liquid-dipped (to "weld" them together) and cushioned in rubber! Finally, each ply is cemented before vulcanizing for a greater protection against separation, bruises and blow-outs!
